Our kids need your help. Science is on the verge of new treatments and even cures, but research is expensive. Please consider a monthly or one-time tax deductible donation before the end of 2019 to allow us to continue our mission. You can now donate via text!

"Kennedy was admitted to the hospital for flu that turned into bilateral pneumonia. She was in the middle of a 6 week hospital stay when the mermaid blanket from the FamilieSCN2A Foundation arrived! They also sent a gift card for me to use for coffee. This was so sweet because my husband was deployed out to sea and we weren't sure if he was going to be able to come home. The blanket was awesome because Kennedy was obsessed with mermaids. We called it her magic blanket and it helped her when the Respiratory Techs would come in to do her breathing treatments and deep suctioning. Everyone on the Foundation's Board reached out constantly to make sure that we were doing well and to see if we needed anything else. Kennedy uses the blanket as a comfort item to this day." Judy, Kennedy's Mom

Changes in the SCN2A gene may cause serious issues in addition to autism and/or epilepsy. Many kids, like Kennedy, end up hospitalized due to immunosuppression and respiratory complications from things as simple as a common cold.

In our recent newsletter, we reported on progress in 6 different areas of SCN2A research. We need your help today to accelerate that progress in the new year. Help kids like Kennedy avoid hospital time. Help us fund a cure.

Please celebrate our progress with an end-of-year donation and then share this with your friends and families.

TOGETHER WE WILL FIND A CURE!
